ABOUT

---

Alex Graduated with honors from Drury University in 2017 with a Masters of Architecture and Minors in Graphic Design and Fine Arts. He has a passion for architectural design and problem solving at all levels and as such has taken various roles throughout different stages of design and construction. These roles have included; schematic design, design development, construction documentation, research, and conceptual planning. Alex has an interest in exploring architecture through visual representation, research, collaboration and iterative design processes. In his time in the profession he has worked on various types of projects and is eager to continue to learn and practice architecture, aiming to establish a voice as a designer and team player.
