

JIM LOHMEYER

PRINCIPAL ARCHITECT

ABOUT

Jim Lohmeyer began his career at Hood-Rich, Inc. upon graduation from the University of Arkansas in 1984. In 1995 Jim left to begin a new architectural firm where for almost 15 years was responsible for all aspects of firm management, including human resources, financial planning, marketing, design, and project management and client relationships. While at his firm, Jim managed the commercial and hospitality sector of the firm which prepared documentation for over four hundred (400) million dollars of built construction over fourteen years. He was also responsible for the implementation of three dimensional design and production software which allows our drawings to be accurately coordinated when changes do occur.

In addition to the broad scope of responsibilities listed above, Jim has experience with the actual preparation of schematic design, design development, and construction documents. He also has extensive experience in the management of the overall project team during all phases of design and construction. Project management involved overseeing the project schedule and making sure milestone dates were being met, attendance at project meetings with owners and consultants for coordination, regular communications with owner representatives, providing guidance in efficient and streamlined document preparation and advising on methods and materials during the design phases. Jim has over 31 years experience in all aspects of architectural management and design.

In June of 2010, Jim came back to his roots here at Hood-Rich, Inc. and has started another chapter in his architectural career. Jim continues to work with past clients such as John Q. Hammons Hotels and has developed new client relationships such as the Springfield Greene County Park Board.
